The next step will be to invite potential volunteers who are interested in becoming a level two – small animal capture - to an induction session. This is necessary to enable us to give important information about Cuan Wildlife Rescue’s working policies and procedures and to enable you to see what happens once you have rescued and delivered the animal casualties safely to the centre.

Unfortunately, Cuan Wildlife Rescue cannot cover any costs of fuel, car maintenance or insurance.

You must check with your insurance company that you are covered for voluntary work in your car, some insurers do cover this, others require you to have extra cover. It is your responsibility to check with your insurer.
